THE CUSTER FIGHT

A New Version—White Men With the Indians.

By American Press Association to the Star.

NEW YORK, August 1.—A special from Bismarck, D. T., says a new version of the Custer fight has just been learned, being the story related by a Sergeant of the Sixth Infantry. He asserts that Custer was led into a snare by the treachery of a Crow scout named Cross. This scout, with the guides, Girard and Jackson, were all who escaped from the massacre. It is said that Cross was sent out to reconnoiter, by Custer, the night before the battle, and that he returned in the morning and reported the Indian village a small one and one that offered an easy victory.

Then followed the disastrous charge and wholesale massacre. The Indians were fully informed and aware of Custer's intentions, and had made every preparation to give him a warm reception. A great number of willow brush was thrown up, behind which the redskins could pick off the soldiers without being seen. Further evidence has also been obtained proving that white men were with the redskins. Reno's men say that they heard English spoken frequently in the Indian ranks during the fight. One of the Indians shot by Reno's men was found to be a white man with long gray beard, wearing an Indian mask. A bugler, who was honorably discharged from the Second Infantry in 1868, is also believed to be with them. During the fight he blew the calls on his trumpet several times.

DISCUSSING THE EASTERN QUESTION.

LONDON, August 1.—During a debate in the House of Lords on the Eastern questions, Lord Dousey said that the English Government desired no unnecessary changes of government in the East; that Turkey would not engage in any large change that was only partly understood, nor would that Government needlessly run the risk of disturbing the peace of Europe.

Hon. Mr. Gladstone, in the House of Commons, attacked the Government for permitting the interference in the Turkish war to pass from their hands. He advised a re-establishment of the European concert of action, and hoped for the maintenance of the territorial integrity of Turkey, with absolute guarantees of reforms. Hon. Mr. Disraeli, in reply, said that when the time for intervention between the combatants arrived he hoped the Government would do its duty, and in so doing meet the approbation of the world.

The Empress Eugenie's Laces.

United States District Attorney Bilas has given orders to Deputy Collector Phelps, of the Ninth Division of the New York Custom-house, to surrender to Mrs. Horrocks, of Brussels, that portion of the lace formerly owned by the Empress Eugenie, of France, which Mrs. Horrocks has sworn was her own personal property. These laces are estimated at a high value by those who are experts in such matters, being of rare design and wondrous workmanship; and the late Mr. A. T. Stewart expressed a strong desire to get possession of them when they should be offered for sale, as they doubtless now will be. The laces were seized by a special Treasury agent over a year ago, on the charge that they were smuggled, and had been offered for sale. There are twelve pieces which have been condemned to the Government, and these will be sold shortly at Customs sale.

"DEAR SIR—Having examined, at your request, the Park Lane Bridge, over Kemper Lane, and also its plan and elevation as shown by the drawings on file in your office, I give it my opinion that the bridge is defective both in its masonry and in its work, and that the longer use of it by the public would be hazardous. I think that the piers should be removed, or, as proper plans for rebuilding the bridge can not be made until the rock is uncovered. Respectfully,
